

Departmental Ditties And Barrack Room Ballads Annotated

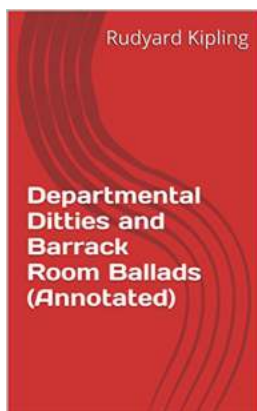

Departmental Ditties And Barrack Room Ballads is a poetry collection written by Rudyard Kipling. Published in 1886, the collection gained immense popularity and established Kipling as a renowned poet and writer. These poems celebrate the life of soldiers stationed in India during the British Raj and provide a unique insight into their experiences, emotions, and adventures.

The Content

The poetry collection is divided into two parts: Departmental Ditties and Barrack Room Ballads. The Departmental Ditties section comprises rhymes that satirize various civilian departments in India. Kipling showcases his wit and sharp observatory skills to expose the idiosyncrasies and bureaucracy prevalent in these governmental entities. Readers are treated to humorous and engaging verses that capture the essence of administrative life in colonial India.

I have eaten your bread and salt,
I have drunk your water and wine;
The deaths ye died I have watched beside,
And the lives that ye led were mine.

Was there aught that I did not share
In vigil or toil or ease,—

One joy or woe that I did not know,
Dear hearts across the seas?

I have written the tale of our life
For a sheltered people's mirth,
In jesting guise—but ye are wise,
And ye know what the jest is worth.
